

The connotation of space and ecological development

Author: Yan Changming

Abstract

The existence of all living creatures relies on space, which is not only a physical idea, but also a social philosophy concept. By exploring the connotation of space, we learn more about how to build a harmonious relationship between human and nature.

Community with a shared future for mankind is also based on space. Only by better understanding and utilizing space, as well as protecting the environment and conserving resources, can we head to a green future with carbon neutrality.

Key words: space, a shared future for mankind, carbon neutrality
